KRAFT FOODS INC. PROPOSES COMBINATION WITH CADBURY PLC, BUILDING
ON A GLOBAL POWERHOUSE IN SNACKS, CONFECTIONERY AND QUICK MEALS

Kraft Foods Inc. (“Kraft Foods”) today announces that it has made a proposal to the Board of Cadbury plc (“Cadbury”) to combine the two companies. The Board of Cadbury has rejected this proposal. Kraft Foods is committed to working toward a recommended transaction and to maintaining a constructive dialogue and is announcing this proposal as a means to encourage and further that process. Included in Appendix I are two letters to the Chairman of Cadbury which set out the strong strategic rationale for the proposed combination and the attractive premium and compelling value proposition for Cadbury’s shareholders.

Kraft Foods is proposing an offer for Cadbury (the “Possible Offer”) of 300 pence in cash and 0.2589 new Kraft Foods shares per Cadbury share. This values each Cadbury share at 745 pence (based on the closing price of $28.10 for a Kraft Foods share on 4 September 2009 and an exchange rate of 1.6346 $/£) and values the entire issued share capital of Cadbury at £10.2 billion. The combination would build on Kraft Foods’ position as a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals with a rich portfolio of iconic brands.

The Possible Offer represents a premium of:

- 42% over Cadbury’s share price of 524 pence on 3 July 2009, prior to recent analyst suggestions regarding potential sector consolidation;
- 34% over Cadbury’s 90-day average share price of 555 pence in the period up to 4 September 2009, the last business day preceding this announcement; and
- 31% over Cadbury’s closing share price of 568 pence on 4 September 2009, the last business day preceding this announcement.

Kraft Foods would also offer a mix and match facility under which Cadbury shareholders could elect, subject to availability, to vary the proportions in which they would receive cash and new Kraft Foods shares. Kraft Foods reserves the right to change the terms of the Possible Offer and the consideration mix in the future as explained in the Important Notice below. Financing would be on the basis that Kraft Foods would maintain an investment-grade credit rating.

Kraft Foods believes that the strategic and financial rationale for the transaction is compelling. The transaction would create:

- a company with approximately $50 billion in revenues;
- a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals, with an exceptional portfolio of leading brands around the world;
- a geographically diversified combined business, with leading positions and significant scale in key developing markets including India, Mexico, Brazil, China and Russia;
- a strong presence in instant consumption channels in both developed and developing markets, expanding the reach and margin potential of the combined business;* and
- the potential for meaningful revenue synergies over time from investments in distribution, marketing and product development. In addition, there is a significant opportunity to realise pre-tax cost savings of at least $625 million annually. This is expected to be achieved through increased operational efficiencies over and above the current performance improvement programmes at Kraft Foods and Cadbury (including Cadbury's Vision Into Action ("VIA") programme). Kraft Foods expects that it will achieve the run-rate on these cost savings by the end of the third year following completion. Total one-off implementation cash costs of approximately $1.2 billion would be incurred in the first three years following completion.

Kraft Foods has a proven track record of successfully completing and integrating strategic combinations to build iconic brands and multi-national businesses, including the acquisitions of LU in 2007 and Nabisco in 2000.

In addition, Kraft Foods expects that the combination would enhance its growth and margin profile, and be accretive to earnings in the second year following completion on a cash basis

(which excludes the one-time expenses related to the transaction and the impact of non-cash items such as the amortisation of intangibles after acquisition).^{} Should the combination with Cadbury be completed, Kraft Foods would expect to revise its long-term growth targets to 5+% for revenue and 9-11% for earnings per share, from its previously announced 4+% and 7-9% respectively.^{}

Commenting on the proposed transaction, Irene B. Rosenfeld, Chairman and CEO of Kraft Foods, said:

“This proposed combination is about growth. We are eager to build upon Cadbury’s iconic brands and strong British heritage through increased investment and innovation. We have great respect and admiration for Cadbury, its employees, its leadership and its proud heritage. As we have done, Cadbury has built wonderful brands by focusing on quality, innovation and marketing, but we believe the next stage in Cadbury’s development will be challenging, given the increased importance of scale in the industry. Cadbury’s brands, which are highly complementary to our portfolio, would benefit from Kraft Foods’ global scope and scale and array of proprietary technologies and processes.

“Our extensive combined global business network would create opportunities for talented Cadbury employees and managers across all areas of the combined enterprise. We would augment Kraft Foods’ and Cadbury’s world-class capabilities by employing a ‘best of both’ focus, from sales and marketing to distribution and manufacturing.

“Our current plans contemplate that the UK would be a net beneficiary in terms of jobs. For example, we believe we would be in a position to continue to operate the Somerdale facility, which is currently planned to be closed, and to invest in Bournville, thereby preserving UK manufacturing jobs.

“We have taken note of Cadbury’s recent performance and the ongoing implementation of its VIA programme. We believe that Cadbury’s share price already reflects its prospects as a standalone entity and the benefits of VIA. Our proposal therefore not only takes into account these factors, but also provides a compelling premium and, we believe, significantly more value for Cadbury shareholders than Cadbury could create independently.

“We hope to engage with the Board of Cadbury on a constructive basis with the goal of consummating a recommended transaction.”

 There are several material assumptions underlying the cost savings estimate which might therefore be materially greater or less than that estimated. This estimate of cost savings has been reported on under the Takeover Code by Ernst & Young LLP and by Lazard & Co., Limited. Cadbury plc

Dear Roger,

I very much enjoyed meeting you this morning. As I explained, we believe that the combination of our companies would provide a compelling value proposition for both our shareholders. As analysts and industry observers have long speculated, our two great companies are highly complementary and a combination makes a great deal of strategic and financial sense. We believe that now is the time to pursue a transaction as a result of the significant opportunities available to both of us. We look forward to engaging in constructive, friendly discussions and working toward a positive outcome on a recommended basis.

We have great respect and admiration for Cadbury plc ("Cadbury"), its employees, its leadership and its proud heritage. We have also taken note of your recent performance and the successful ongoing implementation of your Vision Into Action programme. However, we believe that Cadbury's prospects, ability to fully realise operational efficiencies and capacity to invest are necessarily constrained given its limited scale and scope relative to larger global competitors. We see few catalysts for sustained future value creation for Cadbury as a standalone entity. In contrast, we have concluded that we can strengthen both our companies by bringing them together, enhancing our worldwide scale and scope, and capitalising on significant opportunities to build a global leader in the food and snacking industry for the benefit of all of our respective stakeholders. In so doing, we are eager to build upon the success of your iconic brands and strong British heritage through increased investment and innovation.

Accordingly, I am writing to set out the details of a possible offer to combine Cadbury and Kraft Foods Inc. ("Kraft Foods") (a "Possible Offer"), as approved by the Board of Directors of Kraft Foods. Subject to the pre-conditions set out below, Kraft Foods is prepared to offer 300 pence in cash and 0.2589 new Kraft Foods shares per Cadbury share, which values each Cadbury share at 755 pence (based on yesterday's closing price of $28.42 for a Kraft Foods share and an exchange rate of 1.617 $/£). This price represents an attractive premium to any measure of the standalone value of Cadbury and fully reflects your recent performance and prospects. Specifically, this price represents a premium of:

- 44% over Cadbury's share price of 524 pence on 3 July 2009, prior to recent analyst suggestions regarding potential sector consolidation;

- 37% over Cadbury's 90-day average share price of 553 pence in the period up to 27 August 2009, the last business day preceding this letter; and
- 31% over Cadbury's share price of 578 pence at close yesterday.

We would also point out that this price is beyond any price at which Cadbury's shares have traded since the demerger.

The Possible Offer would provide your shareholders with both value certainty and the opportunity to enjoy the significant value upside in the combined entity's attractive growth prospects and considerable synergies. Kraft Foods would also offer a mix and match facility under which Cadbury shareholders could elect, subject to availability, to vary the proportions in which they would receive cash and new Kraft Foods shares.

I believe that the strategic and financial rationale for this transaction is compelling. The transaction would create:

- a company with approximately $50 billion in revenues, with leading shares in snacking and an exceptional portfolio of confectionery and biscuit brands around the world;
- a geographically diversified combined business, with leading positions and significant scale in key developing markets including India, Mexico, Brazil, China and Russia;
- a strong presence in instant consumption channels in both developed and developing markets, expanding the reach and margin potential of the combined business; and
- the potential for meaningful revenue synergies over time from investments in distribution, marketing and product development, as well as a significant opportunity to realise pre-tax cost savings of at least $625 million annually through increased operational efficiencies¹.

Kraft Foods has a proven track record of successfully completing and integrating strategic combinations to build iconic brands and multi-national businesses, including the acquisitions of LU in 2007 and Nabisco in 2000.

A combination with Cadbury is consistent with Kraft Foods' stated strategic objective to build a high-performing global company by reframing our categories, capitalising on our established sales capabilities and driving down costs without compromising our commitment to high quality. Over the past three years, we have successfully positioned Kraft Foods for sustainable, profitable growth. A combination with Cadbury would mark a logical next step in our transformation as we shape the company into a more global, higher-growth and higher-margin entity.

Together, we would draw on the collective strengths of our two organisations and create a stronger, more competitive global company for the benefit of all stakeholders. We believe that the growth prospects and global scope of the enlarged entity should lead to increased opportunities for talented employees and managers of both companies. In addition, we confirm that the existing contractual employment rights, including pension rights, of all employees of Cadbury would be fully safeguarded.

¹ The following statement has been included for clarification purposes but was not included in the original letter to Cadbury dated 28 August 2009: "There are several material assumptions underlying the cost savings estimate which might therefore be materially greater or less than that estimated. For further details see Appendix II and the letters from Ernst and Young LLP and Lazard & Co., Limited in Appendix III."

The consideration required for the Possible Offer would be provided from a combination of Kraft Foods' existing funds, new debt and the issuance of equity. Financing would be on the basis that Kraft Foods would maintain an investment-grade credit rating. The significant cash flow of the enlarged entity following a combination would allow for rapid debt paydown and the continued funding of growth initiatives.

We, together with our legal advisers, have undertaken an analysis in relation to anti-trust matters. The complementary nature of our two businesses means that any antitrust concerns will be few, and limited in scope: we are confident that any issues can be appropriately addressed within the envisaged implementation timeframe. In this regard, we would suggest that our respective legal advisers meet at your earliest convenience, in order for our advisers to explain their analysis, and for next steps to be identified.

We believe it is in all parties' interests to progress this transaction as swiftly as possible. Our senior management and advisers have already completed extensive analysis and due diligence based on publicly available information. Accordingly, our due diligence requirements are limited, confirmatory in nature and capable of being addressed within a compressed timeframe. Lazard is acting as our lead financial adviser. We have also retained Centerview Partners, Citigroup and Deutsche Bank as financial advisers. Our legal advisers are Clifford Chance; Cravath, Swaine & Moore; Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher; and Arnold & Porter.

It is Kraft Foods' preference to implement any offer by means of a scheme of arrangement but we reserve the right to change this to a general offer. Any offer, if made, would be subject to the terms and conditions usually attaching to a scheme of arrangement, or offer, involving a UK public company.

The making of any offer would be subject to the following pre-conditions:

- satisfactory completion of a limited due diligence review by Kraft Foods, including access to Cadbury's internal plan and projections;
- Kraft Foods obtaining satisfactory financing; and
- a unanimous recommendation by the directors of Cadbury to vote in favour of the scheme, or if relevant, to accept the offer.

For the avoidance of doubt, this letter should not be construed in any regard as constituting an offer or evincing an intention to make an offer or inviting an offer or imposing an obligation to make an offer for Cadbury and any of its securities or otherwise giving rise to legal relations (save for the obligation to keep its terms confidential) and, in particular, does not constitute a firm intention to make an offer for the purposes of Rule 2.5 of The City Code on Takeovers and Mergers. This proposal is made on a strictly private and confidential basis. This letter shall be governed by and construed in accordance with English law.

We trust that our proposal makes clear our level of seriousness and enthusiasm for pursuing this opportunity. We are willing to commit substantial time and financial resources to do so. This matter has the highest priority for Kraft Foods and we are keen to have our advisers and executive team engage with yours so that we can progress this proposal in an expeditious manner.

Per our conversation, I look forward to hearing from you shortly.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Roger,

Thank you for your letter in response to our discussion on 28 August and the letter I sent to you as a follow-up outlining our possible offer (a "Possible Offer") for Cadbury plc ("Cadbury"). I have given careful consideration to your response.

Although I am disappointed that you rejected unequivocally our proposal, I remain committed to working toward a recommended offer and to maintaining a constructive dialogue. We are therefore disclosing publicly our Possible Offer as a means to encourage and further that process.

I continue to believe strongly in the strategic rationale for combining our two companies and that our Possible Offer represents an attractive premium and a compelling value proposition for your shareholders.

As I outlined during our meeting, I believe we can strengthen both of our companies by bringing them together, enhancing their worldwide scale and scope, and capitalising on significant opportunities, building on the position of Kraft Foods Inc. ("Kraft Foods") as a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals for the benefit of all of our respective stakeholders.

We understand the great sense of pride that you and your team have for Cadbury and its brands. We also have a long history of respecting and building iconic brands like Oreo, LU, Milka, Toblerone, Kenco, Philadelphia and DairyLea to name just a few. Kraft Foods is committed to building upon Cadbury's success and strong British heritage through increased investment and innovation.

Our extensive combined global business network would create opportunities for talented Cadbury employees and managers across all areas of the combined enterprise. We would augment Kraft Foods' and Cadbury's world-class capabilities by employing a "best of both" focus, from sales and marketing to distribution and manufacturing. For example, we believe we would be in a position to continue to operate the Somerdale facility, which is currently planned to be closed, and invest in Bournville, thereby preserving UK manufacturing jobs.

I also want to reiterate that our Possible Offer represents a compelling value proposition for your shareholders. Given the proposed consideration mix of cash and shares, they would enjoy both value certainty and significant potential upside in the combined entity's attractive growth prospects and meaningful synergies. As we discussed, and as I noted in my previous letter to you, we commend you on your successful ongoing implementation of Vision Into Action ("VIA"). I believe Cadbury's share price already reflects its prospects as a standalone entity and the benefits of VIA. Our Possible Offer therefore not only takes into account these factors, but also provides a significant premium and, I believe, significantly more value for your shareholders than Cadbury could create independently.

Together, we can draw on the collective strengths of our two organisations to create a stronger, more competitive global company for the benefit of all our stakeholders. I would ask you to reconsider your rejection of our Possible Offer and would welcome a constructive dialogue.

Yours sincerely,

Irene B. Rosenfeld

For the avoidance of doubt, this letter should not be construed in any regard as constituting an offer or evincing an intention to make an offer or inviting an offer or imposing an obligation to make an offer for Cadbury and any of its securities or otherwise giving rise to legal relations and, in particular, does not constitute a firm intention to make an offer for the purposes of Rule 2.5 of The City Code on Takeovers and Mergers. This letter shall be governed by and construed in accordance with English law.

APPENDIX II: SOURCES AND BASES

- (a) Unless otherwise stated, financial and other information concerning Cadbury and Kraft Foods has been extracted from published sources or from Kraft Foods' management sources.
- (b) The Kraft Foods and Cadbury market position information contained in this announcement has been sourced from Euromonitor IMIS 2008 Value Shares and Euromonitor IMIS 2008 Value Share/Positions reports or has been extracted from Kraft Foods' internal analysis based on Reuters reports, peer company annual reports and other public filings.
- (c) The value attributed to Cadbury's issued share capital is based upon 1,366,571,088 Cadbury shares in issue as announced by Cadbury on 28 August 2009 pursuant to the FSA's Disclosure and Transparency Rules.
- (d) The stated share prices of Cadbury are based on the closing middle-market price provided by the London Stock Exchange.
- (e) Information in relation to the average price per Cadbury share over the 90-day period ended 4 September 2009 is for the period from 8 June 2009 up to and including 4 September 2009 (only trading days are included in the average).
- (f) The stated exchange rate of $1.6346 : £1 is the closing US dollar / sterling rate quoted by WM / Reuters on 4 September 2009, the last business day preceding this announcement.
- (g) The share price of Kraft Foods is based on the closing price provided by the New York Stock Exchange on 4 September 2009, the last business day preceding this announcement.
- (h) The expected sources of the stated expected annual pre-tax cost savings of at least $625 million are:
 - (i) potential operational cost savings of $300 million per annum resulting from efficiencies and economies of scale in the areas of procurement, manufacturing, customer service, logistics and research and development;

- (ii) potential general and administrative cost savings of $200 million resulting from efficiencies in the areas of central, regional and country level administrative expenses; and
 - (iii) potential marketing and selling cost savings of $125 million resulting from efficiencies and economies of scale in the areas of marketing, media and selling expenses.
- (i) When evaluating the cost savings the Board of Kraft Foods has assumed the following:
- (i) that Kraft Foods will acquire 100% of the shares in Cadbury following completion, without undue delay;
 - (ii) that there will be no material unanticipated impact on the combined group arising from any decisions made by competition authorities;
 - (iii) that there will be no material change to the market dynamics affecting Kraft Foods and/or Cadbury following completion; and
 - (iv) that there will be no material change to exchange rates following completion.
- (j) In establishing the estimate of cost savings, the Board of Kraft Foods has assumed that Cadbury's operations, processes and procedures are comparable to those of Kraft Foods' own related operations, except where publicly available information clearly indicates otherwise. Kraft Foods' management, aided by its previous integration experience and through an understanding of Cadbury's cost structure based on their own market intelligence and experience, has determined the source and scale of realisable cost savings. The cost savings and the one-off implementation cash costs of achieving the cost savings are incremental to Kraft Foods' and, to the best of the Directors and Executive Officers of Kraft Foods' knowledge, Cadbury's existing plans. In addition to information from Kraft Foods' management, the sources of information that Kraft Foods has used to arrive at the estimate of cost savings include:
- (i) Cadbury's annual report and accounts;

- (ii) Cadbury's presentations to analysts;
 - (iii) Cadbury's website;
 - (iv) analysts' research;
 - (v) other public information;
 - (vi) Kraft Foods' knowledge of the industry and of Cadbury; and
 - (vii) Kraft Foods' experience of cost savings from previous transactions, in particular, LU and Nabisco.
- (k) The Board of Kraft Foods has not had discussions with Cadbury's management to confirm the reasonableness of the Board of Kraft Foods' assumptions set out above supporting the estimate of cost savings. Therefore, there remains an inherent risk in this forward-looking estimate.

KRAFT FOODS INC. (“KRAFT FOODS”)'S PROPOSAL TO CADBURY PLC (“CADBURY”)

Dear Sirs

We refer to the statements (the “Statements”) Kraft Foods set out on page 2 and in Appendix II, clause (h) of the announcement dated 7 September 2009 (the “Announcement”), to the effect that:

“The transaction would create... a significant opportunity to realise pre-tax cost savings of at least $625 million annually. This is expected to be achieved through increased operational efficiencies over and above the current performance improvement programmes at Kraft Foods and Cadbury (including Cadbury’s Vision Into Action (“VIA”) programme). Kraft Foods expects that it will achieve the run-rate on these cost savings by the end of the third year following completion. Total one-off implementation cash costs of approximately $1.2 billion would be incurred in the first three years following completion”; and

“The expected sources of the stated expected annual pre-tax cost savings of at least $625 million are:

- (i) potential operational cost savings of $300 million per annum resulting from efficiencies and economies of scale in the areas of procurement, manufacturing, customer service, logistics and research and development;
- (ii) potential general and administrative cost savings of $200 million resulting from efficiencies in the areas of central, regional and country level administrative expenses; and
- (iii) potential marketing and selling cost savings of $125 million resulting from efficiencies and economies of scale in the areas of marketing, media and selling expenses.”

The Statements have been made in the context of disclosures in Appendix II of the Announcement setting out the basis of the belief of the Directors and Executive Officers of Kraft Foods (the “Directors”) supporting the Statements and their analysis and explanation of the underlying constituent elements.

This letter is required by Note 8(b) of Rule 19.1 of the City Code on Takeovers and Mergers (the “Takeover Code”) and is given for the purpose of complying with that requirement and for no other purpose.

Responsibility

The Directors are responsible for making the Statements in accordance with Rule 19.1 of the Takeover Code. It is our responsibility and that of Lazard & Co., Limited (“Lazard”) to form our respective opinions, as required by Note 8(b) to Rule 19.1 of the Takeover Code, as to whether the Statements have been made by the Directors with due care and consideration.

Our work in connection with the Statements has been undertaken solely for the purposes of reporting under Note 8(b) to Rule 19.1 of the Takeover Code to the Directors and to Lazard. We accept no responsibility to any other parties other than to those persons to whom this report is expressly addressed in respect of, arising out of or in connection with that work.

Our work has not been carried out in accordance with auditing or other standards and practices generally accepted in other jurisdictions and accordingly should not be relied upon as if it had been carried out in accordance with those standards and practices.

Basis of opinion

We conducted our work in accordance with the Statements of Investment Circular Reporting Standard 1000 (Investment Reporting Standards applicable to all engagements in connection with an investment circular) issued by the Auditing Practices Board in the United Kingdom. We have discussed the Statements together with the relevant bases of belief (including sources of information) with the Directors and with Lazard. Our work did not involve any independent examination of any of the financial or other information underlying the Statements.

We do not express any opinion as to the achievability of the cost savings and benefits identified in the Statements. The Statements are subject to uncertainty as described in Appendix II to the Announcement. Because of the significant changes in the enlarged group’s operations expected to flow from the proposed merger and because the Statements relate to the future, the actual benefits achieved are likely to be different from those anticipated in the Statements and the differences may be material.

Opinion

On the basis of the foregoing, we report that in our opinion the Directors have made the Statements, in the form and context in which they are made, with due care and consideration.

Yours faithfully

(“Kraft Foods”) set out in this announcement, for which the Directors and Executive Officers of Kraft Foods (the “Directors”) are solely responsible.

The Statements are subject to uncertainty as described in this announcement and our work did not involve an independent examination of any of the financial or other information underlying the Statements.

We have relied upon the accuracy and completeness of all the financial and other information reviewed by us and have assumed such accuracy and completeness for the purposes of rendering this letter. We do not express any opinion as to the achievability of the cost savings identified by the Directors.

This letter is provided pursuant to our engagement letter with Kraft Foods solely to the Directors in connection with Note 8(b) of Rule 19.1 of the City Code on Takeovers and Mergers and for no other purpose. On the basis of the foregoing, we consider that the Statements by Kraft Foods, for which the Directors are solely responsible, have been made with due care and consideration in the context in which they were made.

Yours faithfully,

A MESSAGE TO STAKEHOLDERS

As you know, on 7 September 2009, Kraft Foods announced that we sent a letter to the Board of Directors of Cadbury plc to discuss the possibility of combining our two companies. Although the Board of Cadbury plc has rejected this proposal, Kraft Foods is committed to working toward a recommended transaction and to maintaining a constructive dialogue. We believe that we can strengthen both our companies by bringing them together. We are eager to build upon Cadbury plc's iconic brands and strong British heritage through increased investment and innovation.

We have great respect for Cadbury plc. We strongly believe that combining our two well-respected companies is a great way for us both to continue to nurture and grow our collective brands.

This proposed combination would create:

- A company with approximately $50 billion in revenues;
- A global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals with an exceptional portfolio of leading brands;
- A geographically diversified combined business, with leading positions and significant scale in key developing markets including India, Mexico, Brazil, China, and Russia; and
- A strong presence in instant consumption channels in both developed and developing markets, expanding the reach and margin potential of the combined business.*

We understand the great sense of pride that Cadbury plc has for its brands. Kraft Foods also has a long history of respecting and building iconic brands like Oreo, LU, Milka, Toblerone, Kenco, Philadelphia and DairyLea. Kraft Foods is eager to build upon Cadbury plc's success, iconic brands and strong British heritage through increased investment and innovation.

We believe the business reasons for combining the two companies are clear, compelling and significant. But we believe this proposed combination is about cultural "fit" as well. It's about value and values. We share many of the same priorities – from food safety to sustainable sourcing to community involvement. In short, we see a great fit.

At this point, we have only made a proposal to combine our two companies. We have made no formal offer yet and there is no guarantee that we will make one.

We have asked the Board of Cadbury plc to consider our proposal with the hope of reaching an agreement. The timing of any potential transaction will depend on a number of factors and we will make a further announcement when appropriate.

Meanwhile, we invite you to visit our corporate website, www.kraftfoodscompany.com, to learn more about our company. We will also update this transaction website with all of our latest communications about this proposed combination.

*Nothing in this document is intended to be a profit forecast and the statements in this document should not be interpreted to mean that the earnings per Kraft Foods share for the current or future financial periods will necessarily be greater than those for the relevant preceding financial period.

Such statements include statements about the benefits of the proposed combination, expected future earnings, revenues and cost savings and other such items, based on our plans, estimates and projections. These forward-looking statements involve risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from those predicted in any such forward-looking statements. We disclaim and do not undertake any obligation to update or revise any forward-looking statement in this document except as required by applicable law or regulation.

Kraft Foods

Irene Rosenfeld, Chairman and CEO

External Interview

September 2009

Q: Why is this proposed transaction right for Kraft Foods?

A: I think it's a logical next step in our transformation toward a high-growth, higher-margin company. It's the opportunity to combine two companies to create a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionary and quick meals that I think has the potential to benefit our brands, our employees, our consumers and certainly our shareholders. It would become a $50 billion company. One that would have the scale, the scope and the resources to grow faster today and well into the future.

Q: Why does this proposed transaction make sense for Cadbury?

A: We have great respect for Cadbury, for its brands, for its employees and for its proud heritage, but I believe that in the current global economy the growth prospects are constrained and so we believe by bringing together these two great companies the opportunity to create a global powerhouse will enable it to compete far more effectively in the future.

For Cadbury's shareholders we believe that the premium we have offered is a compelling one and we believe that the nature of our proposal provides both value certainty in the near term as well as the opportunity to benefit from the long-term upside in the synergies that come from combining these two great companies.

Q: Why are you considering this proposal now?

A: We've been following Cadbury for quite some time. Both companies are on solid footing. Kraft just reported very strong second quarter results, which suggests that we have made excellent progress in our turnaround. We continue to benefit from the integration of the LU Biscuit business that we bought back in 2007 and similarly, Cadbury has made excellent progress against the Vision Into Action program. So I think it's an opportune time for both companies to come together and move together to the next level.

Q: What commitments are you making in regards to jobs or manufacturing facilities?

A: As you might imagine, it's a little bit too early to make any specific commitments. But what I can say is that as we create this global powerhouse, there will be opportunities for talented employees from both companies to continue to have very attractive and successful careers.

In addition, we can confirm that the existing contractual employment rights, particularly pension rights, of all Cadbury employees will be totally safeguarded.

Q: Where are the synergies you identified coming from?

A: We see substantial synergies, pre-tax synergies, as a result of operational efficiencies in combining the two companies. But equally important, we see excellent revenue synergies that come from increased investment in distribution, in marketing and new product development and so although it's premature to talk about any of the specifics, we see tremendous benefits in combining the two companies.

Q: Do you think this proposed transaction is feasible given the political considerations of acquiring a UK icon?

A: Absolutely. We have tremendous respect for Cadbury, for its brands, for its proud heritage and just as we have done, they have made significant investments over the years in quality and innovation and marketing. Especially here in the UK it is an iconic business and it is one that has a very proud heritage and we have every intention of respecting that.

Q: Are there differences in the cultures of the two companies that are going to raise the integration risk?

A: As you read about the history of our two companies and you look at the history of our founders they're remarkably similar and I think some of the great values that have guided the history of Cadbury have also guided the history of Kraft. And even if you look at some of the programs that we have both chosen to pursue, our desire to make a difference in the communities in which we operate is similar. Kraft has pursued that avenue with our Kenco coffee - we've taken a very strong stance with respect to Rainforest Alliance coffee. Similarly, Cadbury has taken a very strong stance with respect to Fair Trade cocoa. In both cases our desire is to help improve the lives of those who raise the crops that we use as inputs to make our own products and so I think culturally the two businesses are quite similar and I'm quite optimistic about the possibility of combining these two very strong, very proud cultures.

Q: Tell us about Kraft Foods given that not everyone knows you in the UK?

A: Kraft is a powerhouse in snacks, confectionary and quick meals. We're headquartered in the US but we have operations around the world. In fact, half of our revenue comes from outside the US.

Globally we're known for a number of billion dollar brands. Brands like Kraft, LU, Jacobs, Nabisco, Oscar Mayer, for example. Here in the UK we're actually not necessarily associated with some of our most famous brands. Brands like Terry's, Milka, Toblerone, DairyLea, Kenco. But we're proud of all of our brands and we believe that the opportunity to bring this iconic portfolio of brands together with the proud heritage of the Cadbury portfolio is a wonderful opportunity.

Q: Why have you decided to go public with your proposal today?

A: While there is no guarantee that we will actually make an offer we believe that our proposal is one that would provide tremendous value to the shareholders of both companies. We have sent a letter to the Cadbury Board of Directors laying out our proposal and we believe that this is the best way for us to proceed.

Q: It's been reported that you are a Mac and Cheese and Oreo fan, so what is your favorite Cadbury brand?

A: There are so many to choose from it's a little hard to pick. I'd have to say on a year round basis I think Trident Gum. I'm a heavy, heavy user of that product. But I would say that on a seasonal basis I just love those Cadbury eggs. And I am so excited about the opportunity to bring our two great companies together and realize more opportunities to make products like those eggs available to more consumers around the world.

BUILDING ON A GLOBAL POWERHOUSE

I'm pleased to share some exciting news. Today, we announced publicly that we sent a letter to the Board of Directors of Cadbury plc to discuss the possibility of acquiring the company. We believe this transaction would enhance our growth and improve our margins, continuing to build on a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals. You can read further details in this press release. (link to press release) Although we are only in the early stages of this process, having made our letter to Cadbury plc's Board public, I wanted to be sure you heard about this from me directly.

Our Board and I believe that this proposed acquisition is one of our best strategic moves at this time. Our businesses are highly complementary. As a combined entity, we would be a company with annual revenues of approximately $50 billion.

Cadbury plc is strong in categories, markets and channels where we would benefit from additional presence. Specifically, this proposed deal would add to our scale in key developing markets including Brazil, China, Russia, and Mexico, while giving us a solid on-the-ground entry into India. Should the combination with Cadbury plc be completed, we would expect to revise our long-term growth targets to 5+% for revenue and 9-11% for earnings per share, from our previously announced 4+% and 7-9%, respectively. All this suggests that the potential acquisition of Cadbury plc would be a terrific next step in our journey to top-tier financial performance.

That's why we are excited about the potential opportunities this proposed combination would bring to both companies' employees, consumers, customers, business partners and, of course, shareholders.

I have great respect for Cadbury plc, its employees and its heritage. Like Kraft Foods, Cadbury plc has built iconic brands over many generations by focusing on quality, innovation and marketing. Our companies already employ many best practices and share common values – from the importance of food safety to sustainable sourcing.

Because Cadbury plc's Board rejected our proposal, we are making it public in order to encourage constructive dialogue and work toward a recommended offer.

As the situation develops, you'll no doubt read about it in the news and have questions about what it means for you. While there may be more questions than answers at this point, we've attached a brief Q&A that shares what we know today. (link)

Of course, we've only just begun this process and the deal is subject to various conditions. It may be some time before it's done, and there is no guarantee that we will move from the proposal stage to making a formal offer, or that we will successfully reach completion if an offer is made. Throughout, however, I will keep you informed as best as possible.

We believe that this combination promises an even greater future for Kraft Foods and Cadbury plc. That said, it is important to remember that our current strategic plan would, if achieved, get us to our stated goal of 7-9% annual EPS growth without this proposed acquisition. So, while I hope that we can negotiate and close this transaction, what I need you to do is remain focused on delivering a strong Q3 and balance of the year. I know that I can count on you to deliver.

Kraft Foods

Irene Rosenfeld, Chairman and CEO

Internal Interview

September 2009

Q: What are you announcing today?

A: We're announcing some very exciting news that Kraft is considering making an offer for Cadbury. It is the very logical next step in our transformation. It is a terrific opportunity to bring together two iconic companies with a fabulous heritage and a fabulous portfolio of iconic brands.

I'm not sure how familiar many of you are with Cadbury's products, but they're household names just like some of our Kraft products. Products like Trident, Dentine, Bubblicious. In the chocolate area; products like Dairy Milk, Flake, and Creme Eggs and even Halls cough drops are products made by Cadbury.

This is a fabulous opportunity to bring together two companies to create a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionary and quick meals. It will be a $50 billion company with operations in significant markets around the world, particularly in developing markets, and so it's an exceptionally exciting opportunity. Obviously there is much work to do as we move forward, but I really wanted to have the opportunity to share it with you as it became public.

Q: What will change for Kraft Foods' employees?

A: At this point, nothing. I think the best thing we can all do is to just stay focused on delivering our commitments for the balance of the year. It's quite early in the process, but I assure you that as news becomes available, I will share it with you as I always do.

Q: Will there be any job losses at Kraft Foods, or will there be any plant closings?

A: Let me be as clear as I can be. This transaction is about growth. It's about creating a global powerhouse of snacks, confectionary and quick meals; one that has tremendous scale, scope and resources to grow today and well into the future. Of course there will be some cost synergies as we put these two companies together, but it is at an early stage in the process. It would be premature to talk about any of the specifics. Mostly I'd like to leave employees with the understanding that this is a terrific opportunity to take our company to the next level on our way to top-tier performance.

Q: How will this impact Kraft Foods' financial performance and if it hurts it, what will the impact be on employee compensation and benefits?

A: I don't expect that it will have any impact on employee compensation and benefits. I do believe that the opportunity of bringing these two companies together will enable us to become a higher-growth, higher-margin company, which has been our aspiration.

Q: Can you describe Cadbury, what are they like?

A: What I can tell you is that our companies have very, very similar cultures. In fact, I actually think that if John Cadbury had met JL Kraft they could well have been friends. I think they both shared a love of innovation, of focusing on product quality and of looking at exciting new marketing opportunities. Even though Kraft is a US company and Cadbury is a UK company, I think there are many, many common elements of our cultures and I believe that bringing the two organizations together can truly create a stronger company from both parts.

Q: What should Kraft Foods' employees be telling their customers, suppliers and other third parties that they work with on a daily basis?

A: It's business as usual. We remain focused on delivering our 2009 commitments and I think that's where we should put all of our efforts.

Q: You've touched on culture a bit already, but what other things make you confident that this proposal will work?

A: Well, in areas like social responsibility there are so many commonalities. I've talked a lot about the experience that we had with our Kenco coffee in the UK by becoming the largest purchase of Rainforest Alliance coffee and the tremendous impact that that has had on not only the sales of our products, but the feelings of consumers about our brand. Similarly, Cadbury is looking at a similar relationship with Fair Trade cocoa. Different organization, same objective – the desire to enhance the environment and the lives of the people who grow the crops that our products depend on. So I think there are great similarities in our two companies and it's what makes me so confident and optimistic that this partnership could be a fabulous one.

Q: So is this a done deal?

A: Not by any means. We have not made a formal offer. What we have done is made a proposal to the Board of Cadbury and our hope is that they will entertain that proposal and engage with us in a constructive dialogue to reach some sort of agreement. But it's way too early in the process and we just have to let things play out.

Q: Is this deal essential for Kraft Foods to become top tier?

A: No. We have a very robust strategic plan. In fact I shared it with our employees just a couple of weeks ago and I am quite confident that with that plan we can achieve the top tier goals that we've set for ourselves. This proposed transaction would simply be a means, I believe, to accelerate our growth and help us to get to that end state even faster. But it is absolutely not necessary to the accomplishment of the goals that we had set for ourselves.

Q: And finally, can you share with us your favorite Cadbury product? What do you recommend that your employees try if they haven't tried it already?

A: Well I think employees are quite familiar with what my favorite Kraft products are. Interestingly, there is a whole bunch of Cadbury products that are a fabulous complement to the products that we make today.

On a regular basis, Trident Gum would be way up there on my list of favorites. But from a seasonal perspective, those Cadbury eggs are a one-of-a-kind experience. In fact, if you actually watch people eat them, the ritual that one uses to eat a Cadbury egg is not unlike the ritual that we talk about to eat an Oreo. So it's one of the many reasons that I think these companies were made for one another.

BUILDING ON A GLOBAL POWERHOUSE IN SNACKS, CONFECTIONERY AND QUICK MEALSFrequently Asked Questions:*Q1 What is being announced today?

Today, we announced publicly that we sent a letter to the Board of Directors of Cadbury plc to discuss the possibility of acquiring the company. In terms of process, it's still very early days, but our goal is to be able to negotiate with Cadbury plc to reach a deal.

Q2 Why are we interested in Cadbury plc?

We've all been working hard over the last several years to build the new Kraft Foods. Thanks to you, we're now ready to take the next step. By adding Cadbury plc's fast-growing brands and broad geographic footprint to our portfolio, we can reach our goal of becoming a top-tier company even more quickly. It's not to say we can't get there on our own, but we expect that combining with Cadbury plc can get us there faster; enhancing our worldwide scale, scope, and resources to continue to build on our position as a global powerhouse in snacks, confectionery and quick meals for the benefit of all of our stakeholders.

We believe this proposed transaction would enable us to bring our brands to more consumers around the world. As we see it, it's a real win-win situation. Good for us. Good for them. Good for our consumers and good for our shareholders.

Q3 What will change for Kraft Foods employees as a result?

At this stage, absolutely nothing. We are in the very early stages. We all need to stay focused on our business and deliver on our current commitments. When there's news to share, we'll let you know as quickly as possible.

Q4 Will there be any job losses here at Kraft Foods?

This proposed transaction makes sense because the two companies fit together so well. The focus of this deal is growth – it's about growing brands on a global basis. That said, of course, we do expect some cost synergies from the deal. However, we believe this proposed deal, if completed, would lead to increased opportunities for talented employees and managers of both companies around the world.

Q5 How will this impact our overall financial performance and what will be the impact on employee compensation and benefits?

Long-term, we believe this proposed transaction is going to benefit our performance by helping us become a higher-growth, higher-margin company. Should the combination with Cadbury plc be completed, we would expect to revise our long-term growth targets to 5+% for revenue and 9-11% for earnings per share, from our previously announced 4+% and 7-9% respectively. As for employee compensation and benefits, at this stage we don't expect any changes as a direct result of this proposed transaction.

Q6 Can you describe Cadbury plc and their culture? Will it be challenging to bring our companies together?

Cadbury plc is a company with a proud heritage and history, just like ours. Cadbury plc was founded back in the early 1800s in Birmingham, UK. Today, they have around $9 billion in revenues and operate in over 60 countries. They're in three major categories: chocolate, gum and candy.

We may be a U.S. company and Cadbury plc may be a UK company, but we have many of the same roots. In learning more about the history of Cadbury plc's founder, John Cadbury, we realized that there are many similarities with our own founder, J. L. Kraft. Both were hard working family men who believed in quality, technical innovation, marketing savvy and building great brands.

Sustainable sourcing is another area we have in common. We are both committed to working with NGOs and business partners throughout our supply chains to improve the lives and environments of those who grow the crops we depend on. Like us, Cadbury plc operates with strong values and a commitment to social responsibility.

These similarities, along with our record of successfully integrating and growing multinational businesses involving iconic brands, such as our most recent acquisition of the French biscuit company LU in 2007, makes us optimistic that we'll be able to work well together given the chance.

Q7 What should we tell our customers, suppliers, and other important people we work with on a daily basis?

It is important to let our customers, suppliers and others know that we are as focused as ever on delivering our 2009 commitments and doing what we do best – making, marketing and selling delicious products that consumers love.

Q8 What are the next steps? How long will this process take?

Remember, at this point, we have made no formal offer yet and there is no guarantee that we will make one. Cadbury plc's Board rejected our proposal and we made our proposal public as a means to encourage constructive dialogue. We have asked the Board of Cadbury plc to reconsider our proposal with the hope of reaching an agreement. The timing will depend on a number of factors and we will make a further announcement when appropriate.

Meaningful synergies and cost savings

- Potential for meaningful revenue synergies
 - A highly complementary geographic footprint
 - Enhanced distribution, marketing and product development
- Annual cost savings of at least $625 million
 - Over and above current performance improvement programs at Kraft Foods and Cadbury

 - Potential annual pre-tax cost savings identified thus far:

 - $200 million of general and administrative synergies

 - Total one-off implementation cash costs of $1.2 billion

*There are several material assumptions underlying the synergies estimate which might therefore be materially greater or less than those estimated. This estimate of cost synergies has been reported on under the Takeover Code by Ernst & Young LLP and by Lazard & Co., Limited. Copies of their letters are included in parts (a) and (b) respectively of Appendix III of Kraft Foods Inc.'s Rule 2.4 announcement which can be found at www.transactioninfo.com/kraftfoods. The estimate of cost synergies should be read in conjunction with Appendix II of the announcement, which contains, among other information, certain key assumptions underlying the estimate.
